Contents

Acknowledgements iii
Introduction 1

Part I Theoretical frameworks

1 Television audience research: a critical history 43
2 Psychoanalytic theories: texts, readers and subjects 59

Part II Class, ideology and interpretation

3 Interpreting television: the Nationwide audience 75
4 The 'Nationwide' Audience: a critical postscript 119

Part III Gender, domestic leisure and viewing practices

5 Research development: from 'decoding' to viewing context 133
6 The gendered framework of family viewing 138
7 From Family Television to a sociology of media consumption 159

Part IV Methodological issues

8 Towards an ethnography of the television audience 173

Part V Television, technology and consumption

9 Domestic communication: technologies and meanings
   (with Roger Silverstone) 201
10 The consumption of television as a commodity 213
11 Private worlds and gendered technologies 221
Contents

Part VI  Between the private and the public  249

12 The construction of everyday life: political communication and domestic media  251

13 Where the global meets the local: notes from the sitting-room  270

Notes  290
Bibliography  297
Index  311
Abercrombie, N. et al.: on 'dominant ideology thesis' 20, 24
Abercrombie, N. and Turner, B.: on media studies 7 address: mode of 65–7, 84–5, 112, 113, 206 advertising: and metaphor 209
age: as structuring factor 125
Allen, R.: Channels of Discourse 6
Althusser, L. 24, 136; on family/school couplet 70; influence on cultural studies 7; on interpellation 62; and relative autonomy concept 55; on unconscious nature of ideology 121
Anderson, B.: on nation as 'imagined community' 267–8
Anderson, J.: on family use of time and television viewing 262; on naturalistic perspective 185–6; on rules of family viewing 184
Anderson, J. and Avery, R.: on interpretative research 36
Ang, I.: on context of viewing 184; on Dallas 208; on ethnography 27; in favour of particularization 187–8; on gender 8, 15, 147; on purpose of empirical study 181; on quantitative research 175, 177, 179; on ratings discourse 175; on role of researcher 31; on viewing and non-viewing 197
Ang, I. and Hermes, J. 169; on dispersion of power 25; on 'gender essentialism' 160–1
Ang, I. and Morley, D.: on context of cultural studies 2
Annan Committee on Broadcasting (1977) 257 anthropology: postmodern 189; research into consumption 216–17; see also ethnography anti-racism: perspective on cultural studies 8
Appadurai, A.: on 'career' of technology 236; The Social Life of Things 213
Arnheim, Rolf: on social consequences of television 289 audience: assumptions made about 84; characterizing relationship to television 206; and citizenship 252–4; definition of 'common sense' terms 98; discourses available to 87, 92; as element of mass communications 77–8; ethnography of see ethnography; as a fiction 178; and 'generalised other' 95; granting privileged status to 180; as passive consumers 18; positioning of 84–5; process of interpretation/decoding see decoding; sub-cultures within 87–90; see also audience research audience research 6–7; 'hypodermic' model 273; micro- and macro- issues 275–7; and nature of texts 119; 'new revisionism' 22–6; obsolescence of 277; problems of quantitative methods 174–7; questioning of 273–5; role of hindsight 23–4 Australia, cultural studies 3 autonomy: and determination 55–7; relative 55
Baines, S.: on technological 'valences' 230
Bandura, B.: on 'acting-out' 50
Barkin, S. and Gurevitch, M.: interpretative research 36
Barratt, Michael 94, 106, 108–9
Barrington-Moore, Jr: on cultural values 37
Barthes, R.: ‘Myth today’ 28; on status of author 10; The Pleasures of the Text 122; and structuralism 33; on ‘work’ and ‘text’ 27
Bassett, G. and Wiebe, Z.: on resistant readings 39
Bausinger, H.: on gender and viewing behaviour 140, 160; on significance of newspapers 268; on technology and the everyday 239, 277–8; on television as escape from domestic interaction 175
BBC: fostering of feeling of community in nation 255–6; view of audience as consumers 218
Bennett, T. and Woollacot, J.: on political and cultural values 8; on textual meaning 26–7, 206
Berelson, B.: on content analysis 49
Beresford, David: on politics of ‘being there’ 286
Berger, J.: on significance of space 271
Berkowitz, L.: on ‘acting-out’ 50
Berland, J.: on ‘placelessness’ 280
Bernstein, B.: educational sociology research 55; on elaborated and restricted linguistic codes 265; and screen theory 68–9; on codes and social structures 5; on determination 56
Bernstein, R.: on education and cultural values 37
Beynon, H.: on relation of class, culture and consciousness 5
Beynon, H. and Nicholls, T.: on relation of class, culture and consciousness 5
Bhabha, J.: on nation and narration 288 bias, in media 7
Birmingham, Centre for Contemporary Cultural Studies 75; see also Nationwide study
Blind Date 39
Blumler, J., Gurevitch, M. and Katz, E.: on gratifications research 24
Bobo, J.: on race and gender 15–16
Boddy, W.: on marketing of new technologies 236
Bough, Frank: presentation of Nationwide 103, 110
Bourdieu, P.: analysis of Berber house 222–3; on codes and social structures 5; concept of ‘habitus’ 19; on consumption 211, 216, 217; on cultural capital 70; on cultural competence 119, 128; on gendered organization of household space 215, 227; on structuring of culture 12, 125; on symbolic value of television 214
Brecht, B.: on crude thinking 162 broadcasting: and rituals of national life 261; and social organization of time 260–1
Brodie, J. and Stoneman, L.: on gender differences in viewing 153
Browne, N.: on status of text 206; on textual meaning 26–7
Brunel University, HICT research 39–40, 195, 239–48, 275, 280
Brunsdon, C.: on audience research 273; on content and meaning 21; on cultural values in television 26; on gender 15, 146, 149; on ideology and construction of texts 30; on status of text 206; on television conventions 129
Brunsdon, C. and Morley, D.: on Nationwide audience analysis 9, 22; on women and workings of home as private sphere 225
Brunt, R. and Jordin, M.: on group interviews 17
Bryce, J.: on context of research 203; on family use of time and television viewing 262–5
Budd, B., Entmann, R. and Steinman, C.: on audience power 29–31
Budget, Nationwide coverage of 103, 104–6, 109–11
Bulmer, M.: on relation of class, culture and consciousness 5
Bunce, Michael: on Nationwide (BBC TV) 9
Burke, K.: on language 95
Bush, C.G.: on technological ‘valences’ 230
Butler, J.: on construction of category ‘woman’ 160
cable television 210, 222
Camera Obscura: on construction of category ‘woman’ 160
Cardiff, D. and Scannell, P.: on development of British broadcasting 255–6
Carey, J.: on senses of space and time 266, 278–9
Carr, E.H.: on nature of history 179
Carragee, K.: on family-based research 40; on interpretative research 36–7; on resistant readings 38, 39 cartoons, implicit social attitudes 82
CBS Home Shopping Club 215–16
censorship 237, 257
Centre for Contemporary Cultural Studies, Birmingham: analysis of Nationwide 4–5, 8–9, 75; English Studies Group 122n 128, 129; see also Nationwide study
Centre for Mass Communications Research, Leicester University 51
Chambers, I.: on counter-hegemonic forces in popular culture 273, 274; criticism of structuralism 33
Chaney, D.: on ritual 264; on television as means of national participation 283–4 children: interviewing of on television viewing 159; supervision of viewing 166, 241, 258 Christmas broadcast by monarch 255, 256 cinema: as experience 157–8; falling attendances 164 Cipolla, C.: on history of clocks 266 citizenship: and audience membership 252–4; and cost of access to information 217–18 class: and available discourses 87; and codes 36; and consciousness 5; and construction of audience categories 130; and gender differentiation 145; and ideology 55–7, 69–70; and interpellation 63; and leisure 225; and mass culture 36; and ‘meaning-systems’ (ideological frameworks) 88–90; in Nationwide audience project 16, 125–6; and public-service broadcasting 219; and repertoires of discourse 70; and supervision of children’s viewing 166
Clifford, J.: on ethnography as fiction 189–90
Clifford, J. and Marcus, G.: on audience research 273; on ethnography 13; Writing Culture 190
Cockburn, C.: on new technology reproducing gender patterns 229 codes: cultural 86–7, 88, 92; dominant 89, 93; negotiated 89, 93; oppositional 89, 93; and social structures 5; see also decoding and interpretation
Cohen, P. and Gardner, C.: on racial stereotypes 8
Cohen, P. and Robbins, D.: on youth cultures 127–8
Collet, P. and Lamb, R.: on ‘modalities’ of television 207–8
Color Purple, The (film) 15–16
commonsense viewpoint: acceptance of 111–12, 115–16; group definitions of 98 communication, vagueness in 184–5 communications research: interpretative paradigm 50–1 communications technology: future of 277–9; individualizing effects 278–9 community: and geography 278–83, 288–9; and ritual 264; transformed by communications technology 280; see also family; household computers 201, 207; gender differences in attitudes to 230, 233–5, 246; ownership of 218; power of software designers 32; symbolic value of 214
Connell, I.: on audiences 7; on ideology 20; on ITV and popular taste 219
Conrad, P.: on selling through television 215 consumption: anthropological research on 216–17; ethnography of 183; home as unit of 224; increasing privatization of 210–11; and nature of audience 212; television as object of 210–12; of texts 211 context: domestic 139–40, see also family; household; of film viewing 157–8; importance of 168–9; influence on decoding 100, 135; of television-viewing 165–8; of viewing 133–4, 184–6
Corner, J.: on act of reading 21; on audience research 18–19; on contextual issues 15; on ethnographic research 39–40; on media influence 20

Coronation Street 150, 151

Corrigan, P.: on context of film viewing 158

Corrigan, P. and Willis, P.: on popular culture 130

Counihan, M.: on content and meaning 21; on mass communications research 78–9

Cowan, R.: on women and leisure 225

Coward, R.: on relative autonomy 55

Coyne, Tom, as Nationwide presenter 108

Crossroads 208

Cubitt, S.: on family viewing 139–40

cultural capital, and family/school couplet 70

cultural competence 128, 129–30

cultural identity, relationship to social relationships and technological innovation 196 cultural imperialism 127

cultural studies: implications of 2–5; new revisionist/interpretivist perspective 11; and publishing economics 3–4, 6; relation of class, culture and consciousness 5; research methods 206, 219; and semiology 24–5; and social sciences 4–5, 24

cultural values: analysis of 37; and educational achievement 37–8 culture: and consumption 216–17; ‘national’ 219–20; youth 127–8

Curran, J.: on ‘new revisionism’ 22–6

current affairs programmes 85, 129; see also Nationwide; Panorama

Daily Telegraph 105, 112

Dallas 150, 151, 208, 219; study (Liebes and Katz) 37, 38

Dayan, D. and Katz, E.: and ‘diasporic ceremony’ 287; on participation and ‘being there’ 286–7; on presentation of royal wedding 285, 287

de Certeau, M.: on consumption 216, 217; on strategies of powerful and tactics of weak 29, 31, 275

de Gaulle, General: on television and government 285

decoding 8, 27, 29, 29–30, 55, 76, 85–7, 76–7; comprehension/incomprehension dimension 136–7; dominant 89, 99, 115–16, 126–7; gender differences 101; and genre theory 127–30; influence of direct experience 100; and intentionality 120–1; interplay of textual and social variables 119–20; and meaning systems 126–7; mechanisms of forming discourses 90; negotiated 89, 99–100, 112, 113, 116–17, 126–7; oppositional 89, 99, 112, 116–17, 126–7, 134, 135; pattern of 117–18; relevance/irrelevance dimension 136–7; reworking of model 126–30; as set of processes 121; and television as ‘conveyor-belt’ 120, 121; see also codes deep structures, and cultural practice 136

deregulation of television, and quality of programmes 26, 218–19

Desmond, J.: on ‘Home Shopping Club’ 215–16

determinism, and decoding and interpretation 89–90, 118

Deutscher, I.: on definition of ‘obvious’ terms 98; on language 96 discourse: dominant 65; educational 113–14; effectivity of 70; formation 90; methodology of analysis 97–8; polysemy of 65

dishwashers 237

Docherty, D. et al.: on viewing of films 164

Donald, J.: on nation as effect of cultural technologies 288; on subjectivity 162

Donzelot, J.: analysis of family 257; on organization of domestic space 237; on status of family 226

Douglas, M. and Isherwood, B.: on consumption 211–12, 214, 216

Downing, J.: on uses and gratifications approach 52–3

Dreitzel, H.: on semiotics and codes 33

Durkheim, E.: on individualism 17, 20

Dyer, R.: on decoding model 126–7;
Index

on deep structures and cultural practice 136

_Dynasty_ 151, 155

Eagleton, Terry: on socialist criticism 34, 35

Eco, Umberto: on research methods 92 educational achievement: and ‘constant TV’ households 169; and orientations to time 264–5

election campaigns 286

Elliott, P.: 53; on uses and gratifications approach 52; _The Making of a Television Series_ 51

Ellis, J.: on determination 55–6; on national nature of television 7, 267

Ellis, J. and Ang, I.: on tekvision’s mode of address 206

embourgeoisement thesis 216, 224

employment, and power within family 148

encoding and decoding see decoding

Ericson, S.: on audience research 273

Erni, J.: on obsolescence of audience research 277

essentialism 15–18

ethnicity, and cultural studies 3

ethnography 39–41; in approach to audiences 13–15; of consumption 183; and diversity 27; fashion for 186; and imperialism 189; narrowing of in media studies 13–15, 196; and _Nationwide_ survey 14; politics of 177–81; postmodern 191–4; potential contribution to audience research 173; problems of 186–91; and ‘realism’ 189

Evans, W.: on audience research 18; on gratifications research 24; on ‘interpretivist’ tradition of audience research 29; on interpretivists 31; on ‘new revisionism’ 22; on oppositional readings 38–9

_Everyday Television_: ‘_Nationwide_’ 92, 123, 124, 225, 255

_Ewige Jude, Der_ 65–6

family: areas closed to researcher 186; assumptions about 84; demographic changes in 163–4; distinguished from household 203; fragmentation of 221; gender differences in decoding 101; idealized portrayal of 107, 115; national audience as 255–6; privatization of 221; regulatory discourses 256–60; role of television discourses 226–7; significance of multi-tv ownership 254–5; state intervention in 257–8; status of 226; traditional image of 163–4, 256–7; types of rules on television-viewing 142–3; see also household

_Family Television_ project 15, 133, 134, 137, 228, 274, 275; criticism of 161, 168; shortcomings 159 family viewing 106; nature of 76–7; need for direct investigation of 138; regulation of 257; research project, design 143; methodology 143–4; sample design 144–5

Feher, M. and Kwinter, S.: on integration of environment and action 183

feminism: film practice 68; perspective on cultural studies 8

Ferguson, M.: on technology and time/space differences 281

Feuer, J.: on audience research 179–80, 273; on ‘implied spectator’ for television 162; on ‘speculative method’ 180–1 film theory: and feminism 68; on importance of context 157–8; and position of spectator 180

Fiske, J.: on ethnography 189; Madonna study 38–9; on _Nationwide_ audience analysis 10, 11; on non-existence of ‘the television audience’ 178; on ‘reader’s liberation movement’ 273, 274; on role of researcher 32; on ‘semiotic democracy’ 26–9; theory of reading 28–9

Fontaine, J.S.: on domestic and political life 225; on public and private spheres 223

Forgacs, D.: on subjectivity 134

_form_: and ideological meaning 123–5; and interdiscursive connections 128

Foucault, M.: on communications and geography 40, 41; and dispersion of power 25–6; on social organization of home 258; on space and time 270, 271, 272

Fowler, Trew et al.: on form and function 124 framing devices 82, 84, 123
Frankfurt School, mass society thesis 45–6
Fraser, Ian, interviewed on Nationwide 103, 110
Fremlin, Celia: on news-watching as ritual 269
Frith, S.: on ideology and reception of texts 30; on significance of radio for family life 259–60
Frow, J.: on 'Nationwide' Audience book 10–11; on role of researcher 31 functional analysis, and communications research 49
Gardener's World 84
Garmanikow, E. and Purvis, J.: on public and private spheres 223, 231, 280
Geertz, C.: on audience research 25; on ethnography as fiction 192–4; on facts and explication 182; on 'moral hypochondria' in ethnography 191; on task of cultural analysis 188–9, 190; on thin and 'thick' descriptions 194
Gell, A.: on symbolic value of television 214 gender: and power 141–2; representation in soap operas 8; as structuring factor 125 gender differences: in attitudes to introduction of radio 233, 235–6; and construction of audience categories 130; and cultural competence 129; danger in making too easy an explanation 169; and differential decodings 101; discussion of 15, 16; in discussion of television 150–2; and 'gender essentialism' 160–2; and leisure 225; and monochronic/polychronic orientations to time 264; and organization of household space 227–8; in popular culture 233; in styles of viewing 162; in technological competence 163, 227–35, 246–7; in use of computers 230, 233–5; in use of video recorders 228–9; in young people's use of technology 245–6 gender relations: and household space 223; and public and private spheres 223; and viewing behaviour 145–56, 148–9; and workings of home as private sphere 225
Generation Game, The 84
genre theory, and decoding 127–30
Gerbner, G.: on proposition analysis 98
Gerschuny, J.: on mass consumption 210
Gewertz, D. and Errington, E.: on postmodern ethnography 192
Giddens, A.: on standardization of time 265; on 'structuration' 18, 19
Giglioli, P.: on codes and social structures 5; on context 169; on language, class and code 56
Gillespie, M.: on seating patterns for television viewing 165; on video and cultural identity 288
Glasgow Media Group 7
Gledhill, C.: on fixing of identities 28; on language and society 178–9; on 'negotiation' of meanings 19; on psychoanalytic and historical subject 67
Golding, P.: on consumption 216; on economic access to information 217–18; on economic reasons for television viewing 168
Goldthorpe, J. and Lockwood, D.; on embourgeoisement thesis 224; The Affluent Worker 5
Goodman, I.: on television and family behaviour 142–3 Gramsci, A.: influence on cultural studies 7, 24; on tradition 64
gratifications see uses and gratifications model
Gray, A.: on subjectivity of researcher 190; on women and video technology 153, 187, 229
Greenfield: on differences in types of media 207
Gripsrud, J.: on audience research 273; on content and meaning 21; on 'readers' rights' 29; on role of researcher 32
Groombridge, B.: on alienated situation of audience 253
Grossberg, L.: on cultural studies 12; on postmodern ethnography 192; on status of text 206; on textual meaning 27
Gunter, B. and Svennevig, M.: on multi-tv households 254; on ‘pure’ viewing 176

Haddon, L.: on male attitudes to computers 233–4
Hall, S.: on cultural studies 3, 4–5, 6, 7; on encoding and decoding of television 8, 12, 29, 86, 211; on ethnicity and cultural studies 3; on nature of ideology 121; on negotiated codes 117; on openness of message 52; ‘preferred reading’ model 21; on semiotics and codes 33; on universalist concepts 60
Hall, T.: on orientations to time 263
Halloran, J.: on audience sub-cultures 54; Demonstrations and Communications 51; on ‘filtering’ by viewer 51; on television and violence 50
Hammersley, M.: on ethnography 186–7
Haralovich, M.: on women in situation comedy 226–7
Hardy, P., Johnston, C. and Willemen, P.: on real and constructed readers 67, 68
Harris, N.: on relation of class, culture and consciousness 5
Hartley, J.: on audience research 273; on national role of newspapers 268; on television and construction of nation 26; on ‘the television audience’ as a fiction 17
Hartmann, P. and Husband, C.: on influence of media 70; on race and media 80
Harvey, D. 40; on prioritizing of time and history 270–1
Heath, S. and Skirrow, G.: on television 7
Hebdige, D.: on consumption 216; on cultural studies 12; on ‘national culture’ 219; on popular culture 8; on ‘uncertainty principle’ 283
Hegemony 121–2; and meaning-construction 91
Hermes, J.: on importance of everyday interactions 161
Hill, J.: on interaction of text and users 87

Hirst, P.: on determination 55–6 history, role of 23
Hobson, D.: on Crossroads 208; on gender and current affairs 129–30; on gender identities 8, 15; on television viewing by women 228
Hodges, J. and Hussain, A.: on state intervention into family life 257; on status of family 226 home: gender differences in attitudes to 146; see also family; household Horton, D. and Wohl, R.: on para-social interaction 279; on television as interaction 208 household: as context of television meaning 202–3; distinguished from family 203; as unit of television consumption 215; see also family; space, household Household Uses of Information & Communications Technology (HICT) project 28, 39–40, 195, 239–48, 275
Hoyles, M.: on act of reading 21
Hurtado, A.: on race and public and private spheres 223
Hymes, D.: on codes and social structures 5; on cultural competence 119; on different uses of language 96; on ‘ethnography of speaking’ 130
‘hypodermic model’, in mass communications research 45–6, 48, 59, 78–9, 83, 273 identification: failures of 209; in rhetoric of television 208–9 identity, fixing of 28 ideology, influence of 20
implicit messages: methodology for analysing 82; semiological analysis 83; see also hypodermic model individualism, and group interviews 17–18 information gap model 218
intentionality: in encoding/decoding model 120–1; see also decoding interdiscourse 60–1, 76–7, 195; extradiscursive 70; and interpellation 61–5 internationalization of television 219–20 interpellation: contradictory 63–4; and interdiscourse 61–5 interpretation, group 97
intertextuality 27
interviewing methods, defence of 180–1

Jameson, F.: on significance of space 271
Jennings and Madge: on mediated participation in Coronation (1937) 284
Jensen, K.B.: on contextualization of research findings 176; on oppositional decodings 31; on significance of everyday experience 185
Jensen, K.B. and Rosengren, K.: on 'convergence' in audience research 25

Jewel in the Crown, The 151
Johnston, C.: on subjectivity 67–8
Jouet, J. and Toussaint, Y.: on technology use in France 234
Jud Suss 65–6

Kantor, D. and Lehr, W.: on family use of time 262–3
Katz, E. and Lazarsfeld, P.: mass society thesis 45–6, 48; Personal Influence 48
Keddie, N.: on codes and social structures 5; on education and cultural values 37
King, A.: on patterns in leisure 224–5; on standardization of time 265
Klapper, J.: on 'reinforcement' 48
Knorr-Cetina, K.: concept of 'methodological situationalism' 188
Kramarae, C.: on definition and use of technology 230
Kubey, T.: on use of television to avoid negative moods 167–8
Kumar, K.J.: on family structure and relating to television 166

Labov, W.: on codes and social structures 5
Lacan, J.: on constitution of subject 60; on interpellation 62
Laclau, E. 160; on class and ideology 69; on interpellation 62–3, 64

Laclau, E. and Mouffe, C.: Hegemony and Social Strategy 134
Lakoff and Johnson: on metaphor 209 language: and consciousness 121; form and meaning 123–5; lexico-referential systems 93–4; political determinations of 94–5; and project methods 95–6, 98; and society 178–9 language, class and code 55–8
Lazarusfeld, P. et al.: The People's Choice 48

leisure: and class 225; and gender 225; gender differences in 225; increasingly home-centred 164
Lemish, D.: 'The rules of viewing television in public places' 133
Lewis, C.A.: on radio and home life 259
Lewis, J.: on group interviews 17; on narrative in television news 209
lexico-referential systems 93–4
Liebes, T. and Katz, E.: Dallas study 37, 38
Lindlof, T. and Meyer, T.: on interactive technology 238–9; on significance of interactive technology 277; on significance of domestic settings 203; on vagueness in communication 184–5
Lindlof, T. and Traudt, P.: on family viewing 140; on household space and viewing habits 165; on physical structure of home 204; on use of technology in home 227
Live Aid 286–7
Lockwood, D.: on consumption 216
Lodziak, C.: on economic reasons for television viewing 168; on effect of broadcasting on domestic time 261; on social organization of time 266
Lull, J.: cross-cultural comparisons of sense of time 262; on ethnography 13, 186; on household space and viewing habits 165; on importance of context 176; on influence of household space 204; on 'modalities' of television 207–8; on selection of television programmes 141; on television and use of time 262; on use of video recorders 228–9

McArthur, C.: on political and cultural values 8 <table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Author</th>
<th>Reference</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>McCabe, C.</td>
<td>on political and cultural values 8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>MacIntyre, A.</td>
<td>on thought and action 94–5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McLuhan, M.</td>
<td>on differences in types of media 207; on television 7</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McLuhan, M. and Fiore, Q.</td>
<td>on 'global village' 278</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McRobbie, A.</td>
<td>on subjectivity of researcher 190</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McRobbie, A. and Garber, J.</td>
<td>on girls' rejection of masculine-coded objects 234–5; on girls' sub-cultures 228; 245–6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Maddox, B.</td>
<td>on women's use of telephone 232</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Madonna</td>
<td>study of readings of by teenage girls 38–9</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Malinowski, B.</td>
<td>on immersionist ethnography 191</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mann, M.</td>
<td>on 'abstract' and 'situated' levels of consciousness 9; on relation of class, culture and consciousness 5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Marcus, G. and Fischer, M.</td>
<td>on anthropology as reflexive 184; on 'crisis' of ethnography 13, 189</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Martin, G.</td>
<td>on role of popular newspapers 253</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Martin-Barbero, J.</td>
<td>on mass-culture 36; on television and construction of nation 267</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Marx</td>
<td>on 'generalised other' 95</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Marxism</td>
<td>and audience research 20; and mass culture 34–5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mascia-Lees, F.E. et al.</td>
<td>on politics of postmodern ethnography 191, 192</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Meyerowitz, J.</td>
<td>on Live Aid 286–7; on media and sense of place 279–8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Merton, R.</td>
<td>on audience research 24–5; Mass Persuasion 47–8, 49</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Merton, R. and Kendall, P.</td>
<td>on focused interview 96–7</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Merton, R. and Lazarsfeld, P.</td>
<td>on narcotic effect of media 252</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Meehan, P.</td>
<td>on 'generalised other' 95</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Medrich, E.</td>
<td>on television as background 166–7</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Meyerowitz, J.</td>
<td>on Live Aid 286–7; on media and sense of place 279–8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miller, D.</td>
<td>on concept of 'local' 282; on consumption 211–12, 216–17</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mills, A. and Rice, P.</td>
<td>on quiz shows 8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mills, C.W.</td>
<td>on indexical analysis of vocabularies 93–4; language 95, 96</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mills, T.</td>
<td>on class and gender 15, 160; on mass culture 34–5; on Nationwide study 35; on subject-positioning and soap opera 181</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Modleski, T.</td>
<td>on class and gender 15, 160; on mass culture 34–5; on Nationwide study 35; on subject-positioning and soap opera 181</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Money Programme, The</td>
<td>on Donald Duck 82</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mattelart, A. and Dorfmann, A.</td>
<td>on Donald Duck 82</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mattelart, A.</td>
<td>on cultural imperialism 127; on empirical facts 125</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mattelart, A. and Dorfmann, A.</td>
<td>on Donald Duck 82</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mayer, M.</td>
<td>on women's use of telephone 231</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mead, G.H.</td>
<td>on 'generalised other' 95</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Metcalf</td>
<td>on 'hypodermic model' 45–6, 48, 59; normative paradigm 47–8; 'pendulum effect' 78; 'uses and gratifications' see uses and gratifications approach</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Metcalf</td>
<td>on mass communication 34–6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Metcalf</td>
<td>on mass society and Fascism 45–6; role of groups and opinion leaders 48</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Money Programme, The</td>
<td>on Donald Duck 82</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Money Programme, The</td>
<td>on Donald Duck 82</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Moores, S.: on broadcasting and family values 258-9; on communication and geography 41; on radio as masculinized technology 235–6, 266–7
Moorhouse, H. and Chamberlain, C.: on relation of class, culture and consciousness 5
Morris, M.: on audience research 273–4
Mr and Mrs 84
multi-set households 201
multinationalism in broadcasting corporations 289
Murdock, G.: on audience research 273, 274–5; on combining micro and macro issues of communications 272; on concept of ‘habitus’ 19–20; on cultural studies 4–5; on economic access to information 217–18; on economic reasons for television viewing 168; on mass culture 36; on openness of texts 31–2; on research methods 13; on sub-cultures 81
Nader, R.: Nationwide feature on 101–2, 109
narrowcasting 289
nation, as effect of cultural technologies 288
National Viewers’ and Listeners’ Association 258 nationalism, influence of media on 267–8
Nationwide: ‘deconstructed’ readings 113; influence of implicit messages 81–2; non-engagement with 114–15; perception of class bias 108; perception of political bias 105–6, 107, 111, 112, 113; perception of race bias 107, 114; seen as aimed at women 106; self-denigrating approach 81
Nationwide audience research project 2, 3, 8–9, 10–15, 39, 75–118; analysis of isolated parts of discourse 124; analytic methods 22, 92–3; and class 16; contextual variations 100, 133–4; interviewing groups 104, 111–17; interviewing methods 91–2, 96–8; involvement variations 99; language considerations 94–6; and negotiation and resistance from audience 91; re-examination of 119–30; research procedure 93–4; socio-demographic variations 99; sociological problems 125–6; studying maintenance of hegemony 91; topic variations 99–100; transcript interpretation 111–17; transcripts 104–11
Naumann, M.: on subject 129
Nava, M.: on ‘contradictions of consumerism’ 273
Nazi propaganda 65–6
Neale, S.: on context of text 57, 86; on determination 58; on form and function 124; on modes of address 66; on Nazi propaganda 65–6
Newcomb, H. and Hirsch, P.: on producer and consumer of television 31 news and current affairs: gender differences in viewing 155–7; influence of 77, 79; levels of interest in 251, 254; local 157, 251 news-watching: motivation for 284–5; as ritual 79, 252, 268–9, 276; as transmission of ideological categories 276 newspapers: interpretative role 253–4; providing imaginary links to members of nation 268
Nice, R.: on sociology of culture 274
Nicholls, T. and Armstrong, P.: on relation of class, culture and consciousness 5
Nightingale, V.: on ethnographic research 13–14
Nordenstreng, K.: mass communications research in Finland 79, 252, 268
Not the 9 O’Clock News (BBC) 80
Nowell-Smith, G.: on Subject 68
O’Connor, A.: on cultural studies 3–4, 12
Ohmae, Kenichi: on global strategies 289
Open University, ‘Popular Culture’ course 8 oppositional (‘resistant’) readings 38–9
Index

Panorama 81, 82, 84, 106, 107, 251
Parker, C.: on gender differences in decoding 101
Parkin, F.: on 'abstract' and 'situated' levels of consciousness 99; on class and ideology 69; and contradictory interpellations 63; encoding/decoding model 55; on 'meaning systems' and class 12; on 'meaning-systems' 88-9, 90, 118, 126-7; model of class structure 126; on relation of class, culture and consciousness 5 participant observation: and interpretation 180, 181; potential contribution to audience research 173
passive people-meters 174
Pateman, T.: on election campaigns 286
Paterson, R.: on reordering of public and private spheres 257; on supervision of children's viewing 166, 258; on videos and uncertified material 238
Pay-TV 211, 213
Pecheux, M. 188, 195; on interdiscourse 61, 64, 77
'pendulum effect' in mass communications research 78
phenomenology, influence on interpretative research 37
Piepe, A. et al.: on group decoding 97
Police Five 157
politics: and domestic life 225, 283-7; and 'non-political' television 9
Pollock, F.: on individualism 17-18
polysemy, in media texts 38
Pool: on telephone and privacy 238 popular culture, research into 8-10 post-structuralism: in ethnography 191-4; and theorization of cultural studies 3-4 Poulantzas, N.: on class and ideology 69 power: and gender relations 141-2; and men's need for control 162-3; over family viewing 139, 147-8 preferred readings 65, 86-7, 92; of fiction 122; status of 122-3; and textual practices 123 presenters: 'direction' and 'closures' of message 84, 85; influence on audience 94; response to 106-7, 108
Press, A.: on class and gender 160
Pride, J. and Holmes, J.: on codes and social structures 5 production, as element of mass communications 77-8 programme, as element of mass communications 77-8 programme preferences: gender differences in 155-7; and sense of identity 162 programme styles 84-5
proporession analysis 98
psychoanalytic theory 59-71; universalist nature of 59-60 public-service broadcasting, and class 219
quiz shows 8
Rabinow, P.: on 'symbolic violence' in ethnography 189 race 80; and available discourses 87; and public and private spheres 223; stereotypes of 8 radio 207; as masculinized technology 233, 235-6; and organization of family life 258-60; as 'speaking clock' 267; and television viewing 260
Radway, J.: on audiences 14; on conception of ethnography in media studies 196; on gender 15, 16; and gratifications research 24; on Nationwide audience analysis 11; on reading of romance fiction 141-2; on relation of media to everyday life 195, 197; Reading the Romance 10
Rakow, L.: on technology and gender 230-2
Rath, C.D.: on community and geography 288; on trans-border broadcasting 268 ratings, significance of 174-7
Rawlence, C.: on standardization of time 266 reader: and discursive formations 68-9; 'ideal' 129; 'inscribed by the text' 129; role of 28-9, 130 readers, real and constructed 67
reading: applying model to television consumption 206-7; 'preferred' 65, 86-7, 92, 121-3; social context of 118
realisms, variety of 67
Index

323

reception theory, and definition of text 179–80
Reith, Lord 255, 256
relative autonomy, concept of 55 remote-control devices: ownership of 228; power over 147, 162–3; and viewer inattentiveness 174 research: doubts about validity of 190; open-ended 187; political objections to 190–1 researcher: role of 31, 32–3; subjectivity of 190 revisionism, ‘new’, in audience research 22–6 rhetoric: addition and suppression 209; homology 208; identification 208–9; metaphor 209; using analysis of on television 208–10
Richards, I.: on variant and misreadings 12
Riley, D.: on construction of category ‘woman’ 160
Riley, J. and Riley, M.: on communications research 49 ritual: as mode of dramatizing community 264; news-watching as 79, 252, 268–9, 276
Robins, K.: on communication and geography 40–1; on spatial restructuring 271
Robins, K. and Webster, F.: on selling through television 215
Rogge, J.U. and Jensen, K.: on effect of new technologies 281; on use of video recorders 228 romance: gender differences in viewing 155–6 romance fiction, women’s reading of 128, 141–2
Rosen, H.: on codes and social structures 5; on determination 56; on education and cultural values 37; on television and educational achievement 169
Rosengren, K.: on gratifications research 24
Ross, Andrew: on television 7
Rothschild, J.: on gendered use of home computers 230
Royal Television Society, Towler’s 1985 lecture to 176
Ruskin, J.: on women and home 225
Rutherford, J.: on concept of nation 288
Ryall, T.: on genres of cultural artefacts 127–30
Ryle, Gilbert: on ‘thin’ and ‘thick’ descriptions 182
Sahlins: on consumption 211
Said, E.: on ‘Orientalism’ 189
Sangren, E.: on ‘authority’ in text 192 satellite television 210, 241, 272, 281, 287
Saussure, F. de: definition of text as syntagm 123; on identity and difference 235; on speech act as individual 130
Scanlon, Hugh, interviewed on Nationwide 103, 110
Scannell, P.: on relationship of television and radio 260; on social organization of space 255; on social organization of time 266; on television and everyday practices 177 scheduling policies 237; international 262
Schiller, H.: on economic access to information 218
Schlesinger, P.: on identity and communications 287–8
Schroder, K.: on ‘convergence’ in audience research 25; on decoding 30; on gratifications research 24
Schudson, M.: on audience research 273; on decoding 30; on role of researcher 32; on social context of response 33–4
Schutz, A.: on significance of everyday experience 185
Screen theory 60–1, 61–2; critique of sociological approaches 68–9
Seiter, E.: on class and gender 160; on role of researcher 32
Seiter, E. et al.: on audience pleasure 26; critique of Modleski 181; on rationalization of time 266; on revisionism 23
semiology and cultural studies 24–5 ‘semiotic democracy’ 26–9 semiotics: in analysis of Nationwide study 75; and codes 32–3
Silverstone, R.: on application of rhetorical analysis to television 208; on complexity of television watching 173; on cultural studies 6; on integration of environment and action in understanding communication 183; on news-watching as ritual 269; on television as bridge between private and public 283; on television as everyday life 197
Silverstone, R., Morley, D. et al.: on consumption of television 215
Skirrow, G.: on video games as masculinized technology 232-3, 234
Sky Television, ‘Home Shopping TV network’ 216
Slack, J.D.: on context 276
Smith, Susan: on construction of news 209 soap opera 8, 154; conventions 129; Miller on 282; providing ‘past in common’ 261; significance of multiple narrative 264; and subject-positioning 181 social formation and discourses 57-8 social systems approach to communications research 49 sociology: in analysis of Nationwide study 75; attitude to cultural studies 24; ‘invisibility’ of women in 228
Soja, E. 40; on distinction between natural and created space 270; on time in critical theory 270 space: effect of communications systems on 278-83; household 215, 227; and gender relations 224; gendered organization of 227-8, influence of 204, policing of 258; social significance of 270-2
Spigel, L.: on introduction of television 236-7; on marketing of dishwashers 237
Spivak, G.: on postmodern ethnography 192 sport on television, discussion of 151 sub-cultures 81; of girls 228; within audience 87-90 subjectivity: formation of 162; relationship to actions and social relations 134-6; of researcher 190 subjects: distinctions between forms of subjectivity 129; histories of 64; processes constituting 60; textual and social 67-71 survey techniques, limitations of 173 symbolic interactionism: influence on interpretative research 37 taste, popular 218-20
technology: ‘appropriate’ 229-32; areas for further research 222; changes affecting television 201, 204-5; and control 242-4; and ‘dehumanization’ 243-4; ethnographic portrait of home use 239-48; gendering of 280; home-based uses of 222; inherited competences 247; re-contextualizing study of television within 194; relationship to social and cultural identities 196; women’s attitudes to 163, 227-35, 246-7; and youth culture 245
telephone use 207, 218; and answering machines 238, 243; and chat lines 237, 241; gender differences 231-2, 280; and kin relationships 242, 244; monitoring of calls by family members 240, 241-2; and privacy 238; and spatial constraints 280
teletext 143
television: as background environment 166; commodification of 213-16; contextualization by market 205; decoding/interpretation see decoding; differences in nature of watching see gender differences; viewing; discussion of 150-2; economic access to 217-18; economic considerations for viewing levels 168; and family behaviour see family; household; introduction into household 236-7; need to recognize private and public aspects of 201; and other leisure activities 139, 143, 156; and other media 207, 260; popular consumption of 8; selling through 205, 211, 215-16, 222; symbolic value of 214; as technology 204-5; and use of radio 260; see also broadcasting; viewing texts: connection with production and consumption 86-7; consumption of 211; definition of and reception theory 179-80; direction and closures of 119; influence of sociological/structural variables 119; ‘innocent’ 82; openness of 31-2, 122, enforced 141, 175–6; and inattentiveness 174; and orientations to time 263–5; particularization of 187–8; planned and unplanned 149–50; ‘pure’ 176, 207; solo 153–4; style of 148–9
viewpoints, of ‘ordinary person’ 89, 93, 94 violence and television 50
Voloshinov, V.: on availability of discourses 100; distinction between sign and signal 85–6, 123; and polysemy of message 83; on ‘social individual’ 282; on social nature of consciousness 53, 130
Walker, V.: on girls’ rejection of masculine-coded objects 234–5 wealth creation, alternative theories of 111, 117
Webster, F. and Robins, K.: on new broadcasting technology 254
Widows 150, 152, 154
Willemen, P.: on multinational commodification of culture 274, 275–6; on real and constructed readers 67, 68; on social formation and discourses 57–8
Williams, Raymond: on ‘community’ and ‘communication’ 269; on local and national newspapers 253–4
Williamson, J.: on mass culture 35–6
Willis, P.: on context of cultural studies 3; on education and cultural values 37; on purpose of empirical study 181
Wober, M.: on audience research 174, 175
Woolfson, C.: on individual communication 53–4
World in Action 251
Worpole, K.: on ‘national culture’ 219
Wright, P.: on role of history 23
Wright, R.: ‘functional inventory’ 49
Young, Filson: on broadcasting of time 267 youth culture 127–8; incorporation of new elements 201
Zaretsky, E.: on capitalism and the family 223; on domestic and political life 225
Zimmermann, J.: on new technology reproducing gender patterns 229